Reflections on trauma: A phenomenological qualitative secondary analysis of archived interviews about adolescent experiences during the 1970 Kent State student shootings

Sheryl Chatfield¹, Kristen DeBois², and Erin Orlins²

¹Kent State University
²Affiliation not available

December 29, 2020

Abstract

Data consists of interview recordings and transcripts housed in the May 4 Archive, established within the Kent State University Libraries in 1990. The archive contains oral history interviews with individuals who were present at events leading up to and including the May 4 shooting. Interviews were largely conducted on campus during memorial activities that occur each year on May 4. Interviewers were archive staff and interviewees consisted of former university students, alumni, faculty, and administrators, and community members, including some individuals who were adolescents in 1970.

Hosted file