COVID-19, When fourteen days are not enough – A case series of affected healthcare workers

Catherine Murphy¹, Noirin Noonan², Eilis O’Toole², Patrick Plunkett², Zenia Martin², Catriona Canning², Mary Paula Colgan², and Martina Hennessy²

¹Affiliation not available
²Trinity College Dublin School of Medicine

October 30, 2020

Abstract

This case series identified a sub cohort of healthcare workers with COVID-19 who experienced a prolonged symptomatic course and remained unable to return to work for many weeks. It notes their demographic and clinical characteristics and suggest ways to support them returning to work in a graded and supported manner.
Figure 1: Bar chart - Symptoms at initial diagnosis vs symptoms at time of review

† - Figure represents each patient’s main symptom only